Connecting Hackney and Tower Hamlets Schools

Who are we?

The East London Teaching School Hub, through an ethos of collegiality, inclusion and transparency ensures every teacher has equal access to a clear and all-compassing pathway of professional development. The Hub, in partnership with UCL Institute of Education (our lead provider) and a consortium of strategic partners across Tower Hamlets and Hackney, takes the lead in the Early Career Framework programme. Currently, there are more than 1,000 Early Career Teachers (ECTs) and mentors participating in the programme, representing 140 schools. Let's hear what a mentor and an ECT participant have to say about their experience on the programme below.

Mentor Testimonial:

"I am very satisfied with the support provided to the ECT as well as myself as the mentor. This has made me a better teacher as well as a good mentor. The frequency of meeting with the ECT is really valued by the ECT who I see progressing into a real teacher who practices what she is learning from the training. The hub meetings are well timed so that mentors meet to discuss what we are doing to support ECTs."

Early Career Teacher Testimonial:

"Self-directed study materials act as a useful springboard for discussions held in mentor meetings. They help me to consider different teaching strategies I could use in my classroom and also the effectiveness of the strategies I already use. ECT training sessions with colleagues from different schools is a great way of sharing good practice and helps me to reflect on pedagogy."

How can mentors and ECTs be involved?

The offer for Early Career Teachers (ECTs) and mentors is fully funded by the DfE, and eligible schools can participate for free. Funding is also provided for each mentor's two-year program of development. For more information on eligibility and funding, please refer to the provided link.
